April Issue - A Click Away!

NEW FEATURES, EVENTS, NEWSLETTERS
Dear Leslie,

It was windy last night when I checked Laurel Strohmeyer's owl webcam and I could not see the nest or the female owl sitting on her eggs. This afternoon when I checked they were there, safe and sound. Be sure to enjoy "Video & Webcam: Nesting Great Horned Owls." GPPA has been publishing The Peak for 30+ years and what Laurel has contributed is a first. Thank you Laurel.

There is something about the woman pictured here that is unique. Read "Excelsior!, a humorous poem unknowingly contributed to The Peak in 1929. Another happy article is "Photos" Kestrel Afternoon Delight." Also, did you know that the rate of people living to be 100 is increasing dramatically, check out the Vineyard View Blog article.

Scottsdale's partnership with ASU for the proposed Desert Discovery Center has resulted in two articles "A Peek at the Desert Discovery Center and Education" and "Top Environmental Blogs - Scottsdale & Sonoran Communities." Their purpose is to provide information without contributing to the current "knife fight discussion" of the DDC.

How is the local real estate market doing? Checkout the statistics in "Kraig's Cave Creek Commentary." You'll also learn some local history in the process.

Review the newsletters. They are a great source of information about events and activities. Several of them enable you to register for summer programs. Also, checkout the Community Events Calendar, April is a fairly busy month.

Scottsdale Scenic Drive

Volunteer and you might find discarded treasure, like this somewhat used TV set. It was discovered by volunteer John Rodwick during our last cleanup. John didn’t need another TV and doubted that passing motorists had an interest in watching it, so he placed the TV with the bags of litter he had filled so the trash could be easily picked up by the city.

Friends of the Scenic Drive - GPPA volunteers have supported Scottsdale’s Keep Scottsdale Beautiful initiatives for more than 20 years. The Peak has publicized the initiative since 1983. We gain a sense of pride and accomplishment by performing this essential community service. You can too. New volunteers are needed and welcome.

Following the cleanup, there will be an optional group photo shoot and a complimentary raffle.
